

Commercial Manager

2010-08-15

The Commercial Manager at Freespee should be prepared to face a lot of challenges. No two days will ever be exactly the same, since we are driving the development of entirely new business areas. And this is exactly why we have such a great time.

We are a communications company that wants to take everything you already like about the text-based Online world such as e-mail, Facebook, and Affiliate networks, and make them just as simple and undramatic when it comes voice communication. This could be about making performance-based Print marketing entirely possible, or offering people a safe and secure way to have voice contact with strangers in the online dating world, or sending all your friends a voice mail instead of an impersonal text message. It could even be about offering a smart analysis of which customers who call you—when, where, and how.

We are constantly attracting more customers, and the inquiries just keep pouring in. We need more people who can manage and grow all these opportunities.

If you are already very curious about Freespee and like the applications we are pumping out, it's a good start. If you are also fairly social and down-to-earth you will be extremely happy with us. Good argumentation skills and the ability to build trust is a precondition for working here.

Experience from SEM and Web analysis is an advantage if you would like to work with Freespee Analytics. For Freespee Voice and Talky, it is certainly an advantage if you think that voice is more dynamic than SMS.

We can offer unpretentious and friendly colleagues, and projects that often allow you to redraw the map of the way things used to work. Salary and other terms are negotiable for applicants who believe in themselves and in Freespee.

We're not just looking for one person, but several. For all our applications. Are you someone who can be valuable for all our applications, or are you a genius in one specific area?

Location: Uppsala, Cologne, Helsinki, London. It's up to you.
